

Air Raid Test Generally Successful Throughout County

Most Citizens Cooperate In State Alert

THE LONGEST peacetime air raid alert in Pennsylvania history went off smoothly in Monroe County last night.

For 15 minutes traffic was frozen on most highways as it was throughout the State.

The alert sounded in most of the county at 7:50, an hour and 10 minutes after Civil Defense personnel had been alerted that the test was coming shortly.

The alert was fanned out throughout the State, Monroe received its signal by bell-and-lights system from Ogontz regional headquarters, and reported back to that unit immediately.

The mobilization of personnel within the county went smoothly and swiftly.

The fan-out was started from county headquarters at the Courthouse, relayed by each zone and borough and township director by telephone and messenger.

In Stroudsburg there was a time lag of about two minutes between the receiving of the red alert in courthouse headquarters and the sounding of the public alarm.

But when the alarm sounded—it went off with a fury which hadn't been heard in the area since World War Two. The relay was made possible through joint efforts of Bell Telephone Co., which installed a line to Monroe Silk Mill in the morning; and company officials who had the alarm put in working order.

The alarm blasted out over the town for three minutes in a series of rising and falling warbles. Monroe residents as far away as the Smithfield Township side of East Stroudsburg reported hearing the signal.

And several CD personnel who stopped into the courthouse office remarked, "That certainly brings back memories..."

Despite the sounding of the red alert, traffic was waved on through at the Seventh and Main St. intersection until borough CD Director Russell Williams appeared on the scene and directed that traffic be halted.

Motorists cooperated generally, and so did county residents. Most remembered to pull blinds and draw shades, according to reports from wardens who were on the job throughout the alert.

In East Stroudsburg J. Fielding Vollers, borough CD director, said a crew of about 45 auxiliary police and wardens covered the town and worked with traffic, directed pedestrians to take cover and saw that blinds were pulled.

The fan-out worked especially well, Vollers said; he laid all credit to Bell Telephone. "We raised 50 men in four minutes," he said, "through the kindness and cooperation of Bell Telephone. They played a most important part. They were absolutely wonderful. They stayed right with you... cleared the lines. I can't express it too strongly, the cooperation they gave us."

Mitchell Contends GOP Leaders See Defeat At Polls

DETROIT, Oct. 25 (AP)—Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic national chairman, said today the election campaign "may be approaching the phase where Republican leadership has given up hope of winning on President Eisenhower's popularity."

Mitchell told a news conference Republicans campaigned initially on a "smile and sneer" slogan but now are trying to "scare and smear."

He said Republicans have chucked "fair campaign practices out the window."

1,000 Strikers Return To Work

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP)—More than 1,000 stevedores returned to work today, but about 43,000 continued the strike which is tying up an increasing number of ships and threatening the economic life of this maritime nation.

Some of the stevedores who returned to work in London began unloading a banana ship, the first vessel to discharge its cargo here since the walkout started 22 days ago.

The strike spread today to Manchester, where 500 of the port's 2,300 dockers quit work. Other ports affected include Liverpool, Southampton, Birkenhead, and Hull.

Embarrassing Day For Truck Driver

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25 (AP)—This was a certain unidentified truck driver's most embarrassing day. The load of falsies he was hauling on the Harbor Freeway toppled over.

And there he was, picking up one by one the scores of intimate gadgets that had spilled out into the lanes of fast moving traffic. He stuck to his job with dogged determination and managed to retrieve everything.

"That's worse than having a flat," mused an observer who slowed down to give the truck driver a chance to do his stuff.

Two Tentative Jurors Are Excused, New Ones Seated

By ARTHUR EVERETT

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25 (AP)—A reshuffling of the jury at Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard's murder trial began today. New outside pressures against tentative jurors also were revealed.

One tentative juror kept his seat only after denying a telephone tip that he had threatened to "burn Sam Sheppard."

By the end of the day, two jurors had been excused in routine fashion and their places taken by two new ones. The same process can be repeated up to 10 more times.

Bob Crosby's Three Sons Found Safe

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25 (AP)—An impromptu camping trip by Bob Crosby's three sons kept police-men hopping all over the Hollywood hills last night, but the boys returned safely this morning after being AWOL overnight.

Their excuse, as given by Christopher, 12: "We don't like our nurse."

Christopher and his brothers, George Robert Jr., 10, and Stephen, 8, were spotted by a neighbor boy on horseback as they were cooking breakfast at a camp fire in Barrington Canyon not far from their home. They had slept in sleeping bags.

Their mother said the boys were upset when the nurse, Teresa Flynn, tried to make them clean up their home.

About 90 officers and Crosby's son—Bing's hand-picked brother—combed the hills all night but it took Tim Wellman, 13, son of movie Director William Wellman, to locate the missing trio. The Crosby boys also have two girls, Cathleen, 15, and Julie Malis, 3.

The boys were given a stern lecture by juvenile officers. Crosby said he didn't think he could add to it.

"This just proves they're normal, healthy little savages," he said.

Jobless Total Now Stands At 2,700,000

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—President Eisenhower reported tonight that unemployment has dropped to 2,700,000—the first time it has gone below the three million mark this year.

The chief executive interrupted the reading of a prepared speech on economic conditions—he called this "the most prosperous peacetime year in history"—to read what he described as the latest government figures on employment.

The jobless total this month, he said, has dropped by 400,000, from 3,100,000 to 2,700,000.

Returning to his prepared manuscript, the President said unemployment in some areas—which has brought Democratic criticism in the congressional campaign—"is a matter of deep concern to all of us."

In a nationwide television-radio address, which the White House had billed as "nonpolitical," the President said, amid applause, that he had just received the newest report on unemployment from Secretary of Commerce Weeks and Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

Disclosing plans for a likely new reply to Democratic criticism with the elections just a week off, the President told his audience Mitchell will discuss the unemployment situation in a nationwide television talk tomorrow night.

Eisenhower's major address, prepared for delivery at a meeting of the National Security Industrial Assn., was described as "nonpolitical" by the White House, but it touched on a congressional campaign issue—unemployment—with the elections just a week away.

The chief executive for the most part painted a rosy picture of America's present economic situation. He predicted even better times ahead.

"Drawing on the richly varied abilities of our entire citizenry we can foresee that in less than a decade the national output will increase from today's 356 billion dollars to 500 billion dollars," the President said.

"This would equal an average increase of more than $3,000 for every American family of today. And these can be real dollars—dollars of stable buying power, not simply more dollars of cheapened value."

Eisenhower's economic address was timed a few hours after his televised Cabinet meeting at the White House, dealing with European unity.

The industrial association meeting was at the Mayflower Hotel. After declaring "this year 1954 is our most prosperous peacetime year in history," Eisenhower took the floor to discuss the unemployment problem and the grounds of unemployment in the nation.

Alluding to his prosperity statement, the President added:

"This picture is marred, of course, by the fact that in certain industries and localities unemployment still exists as the aftermath of war and inflation. It is a matter of deep concern to all of us when people, looking for work, cannot find it."

Possibly having in mind Secretary of Defense Wilson's recent controversy-stirring remarks about "kennel dogs" and unemployment, Eisenhower then said:

"Unemployment figures are far more than statistics. They reflect heartache, anxiety, hardship, and ultimately loss of confidence in our country's future. It is not only in the interests of the jobless workman, but for the benefit of all of us that the problem be solved."

The President said, however that "good progress is being made" toward solution of the problem, and added:

"I believe that it is high time. (Continued on page nine)

Adenauer Vows Early Action By West Germany On Paris Defense Union Agreements

BONN, Germany, Oct. 25 (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer tonight promised quick action to get ratification of the Paris agreements to make West Germany a partner in European defense.

He made this pledge in a broadcast on the eve of his departure for the United States to discuss West Germany's new role in Europe. With President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles, Adenauer said he will bring the agreements before Parliament as soon as he gets back.

He arrives in Washington Wednesday morning and is due back in Bonn about Nov. 4.

Adenauer told listeners to the Northwest German Radio the new pacts guarantee "we will succeed in saving peace in Europe and the world and finally achieve (German) reunification."

The Chancellor told the Germans these were the gains achieved at the Paris conference:

1. After ratification, West Germany will regain full authority over internal and foreign affairs. "The occupation period is ended, we are free," he said.

2. The seven-nation West European Union contains elements for integration of Europe—"and thoughts of such integration have in no way been given up."

3. In joining NATO, the federal republic will become part of "the most powerful defense organization ever known in history."

4. The wish for a French-German reconciliation can be developed now that confidence has replaced mistrust and "nevermore shall the two people tear each other to pieces in senseless war."

5. In the Saar settlement both sides had made concessions to reach "a feasible compromise that every good German can support."

The last point was apparently the Chancellor's answer to the storm of criticism leveled at the Saar accord by both his Socialist opposition and members of his own coalition.

German critics of the Paris "package deal" have charged it will make German reunification more difficult, if not impossible, to achieve.

Tells Cabinet Reds Will Fail To Upset Plan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25

(AP)—Secretary of State Dulles, speaking at the first televised presidential Cabinet meeting in history, tonight predicted ratification of the new Western Europe defense plan and forecast failure for Soviet attempts to smash it.

Reporting in intimate fashion to President Eisenhower, other members of the Cabinet and the nation at large, Dulles said the Paris conferences which produced the alliance agreements had to succeed "because the price of failure had become prohibitive."

With Eisenhower seated at his side in the White House Cabinet room, Dulles—just back from Paris—expressed confidence that each of the nations which signed the agreements will ratify them through their parliaments.

Dulles flatly ruled out any new Big Four talks with the Russians about Western European problems until the Allies have further closed ranks to create new strength.

"Then there may be a new basis for discussions which doesn't exist at the present time," he said.

The secretary was asked how Russia was likely to react to the new defense system. This question was put by Secretary of Agriculture Benson, who like other Cabinet members, broke in from time to time.

Before Dulles could answer, the President, a smile on his face, volunteered:

"I agree with you, Ezra, he ought to tell us the story on that."

Dulles then went on to say that the goal of the Communists is to divide the Western allies.

"I don't believe the Soviet Union is going to break it up," he said, referring to the newly erected alliance.

He added:

"The only object of the Soviet Union is by trick or device to try to break it up."

The precedent-setting nationwide TV-radio session from the White House was a chatty, intimate sort of thing with the American people getting their first look into the stately Cabinet room while the meeting actually was in progress.

At the conclusion of Dulles' report, the President warmly congratulated him, saying:

"Foster, I feel as if we should give you a standing ovation."

Eisenhower called Dulles' report a "brilliant presentation," and told the secretary:

"You know how strongly I feel about European unity."

The chief executive made this remark with great vigor after having listened intently to the Dulles report. The secretary used up most of the 30 minutes of air time, with occasional questions from other members of the Cabinet.

Dulles said he thought European integration and unity under the new agreements would be "quite comparable and equally effective" with what would have been achieved under the old, ill-fated plan for a European Defense Community.

He said British and American declarations of intention to take part in a European defense system broke the long deadlock over Germany's role in postwar Europe.

But, he said from the moment that the British and Americans declared their intention, "All of us felt we were bound to succeed."

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey broke in at one point to ask Dulles how much more money the agreement would cost the United States.

Dulles laughed and said: "Not a nickel extra."

"It was not an agreement for us to pay anybody or promise anybody anything. It was an agreement by the Europeans themselves," he said.

Dulles wound up his report with praise for Eisenhower. He said the ministers at the Paris meeting had felt that "if Europe is to stay strong and united, it is very largely because of what you (the President) have done."

Hermann Fields Reported Released By Red Poland; Whereabouts Unknown To U.S.

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 25 (AP)—Communist-ruled Poland announced today it has freed Cleveland architect Hermann Fields, one of four members of the Field family who disappeared in turn behind the Iron Curtain in a five-year cloak-and-dagger drama.

Twelve hours after the announcement was broadcast by Radio Warsaw, a U.S. Embassy spokesman in Poland said in a telephone interview "we still don't know his whereabouts." But the release of Fields apparently was no surprise to Washington.

West's Accords Under Attack From Russia

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. Oct. 25 (AP)—Russia's Andrei V. Vishinsky today lashed at the London and Paris agreements on West Germany and said they were leading to new threats instead of relaxing tension.

"I say you can't have new pacts which make for aggression while you are supposedly seeking disarmament in the U. N.," Vishinsky declared near the end of a long speech on disarmament in the U. N. Assembly's Political Committee.

The Soviet deputy foreign minister added that the Germans already "are dreaming of revenge and retaliation. The immediate neighbors of West Germany will be the first to suffer from that."

He lashed out at the agreements on West Germany shortly after Moscow had set the pace with a quick attack on them. But at the same time, Vishinsky told the U. N. that the Russians had come closer to the West with their new look on disarmament and challenged the west to make similar moves for agreement.

India's V. K. Krishna Menon, meanwhile, circulated to the delegates a resolution calling on the U. N. Disarmament Commission to study ways and means of establishing an armament truce pending agreement on a disarmament convention.

Four months later Noel Field's wife, Herta, left for Prague to look for him. She disappeared. In August, 1949, Hermann went to Warsaw to seek news of his brother and sister-in-law. He boarded a plane in Warsaw, bound for Prague and vanished.

In 1950 Noel Field's adopted daughter, Erica Glaser (Mrs. Robert) Wallach, set out to search for the vanishing Fields. She disappeared in Berlin.

Wood Renews Attack On Foe's Plan To Boost Industry Tax

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25 (AP)—Lt. Gov. Lloyd H. Wood, Republican candidate for governor, last night renewed his criticism of a 60 million dollar corporation tax plan put forth last week by his Democratic opponent, Sen. George M. Leader.

"His tax plan is that of a child," Wood charged. "It must collapse like a toy balloon."

The GOP candidate said Democrats proposed similar plans 20 years ago, adding:

"A disastrous flight of industry resulted. We cannot afford to have that happen again. It won't happen under another Republican administration. It would happen under a Democratic regime bound to carry out the plans proposed by my opponent."

Wood also promised creation of a governor's advisory council. Its members, selected on a non-partisan basis, would provide factual information to the governor on various state programs, he said.

"It will be particularly helpful

Paris, Bonn Must Not Be Sidetracked

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analysis.

The big question now is whether France and Germany can bring themselves to ratification of the new European defense treaties without first getting off on the side-track offered by the Russians.

Russia has timed her latest suggestions for renewed negotiations on reunification of Germany to coincide with Allied consideration of what they have done, and what they must yet do, about West German rearmament.

All the Russians are interested in, of course, is preventing it.

They say they want to talk to Britain, France and the United States about reunification, withdrawal of all foreign troops from Germany, and convocation of an all-European security conference.

That's the same line they took last year, when they obtained a conference at Berlin which served only to divide German opinion and delay French consideration of security matters.

The rapidity with which the Allies have filled the vacuum left by French repudiation of the European Defense Community program is heartening only in relationship to the possibilities of its speedy ratification.

Large sections of opinion in France and Germany are unhappy over the rearmament and Saar prospects, and will put up a claim or for explorations with Russia before going ahead.

The attitude of Britain and the United States is that sufficient exploration has been done with Russia, and that the only hope for any agreement with her lies in negotiating from the strength which would be provided by a signed, sealed, delivered and working Western European defense organization.

There are reports that French Premier Mendes-France has now more or less accepted this view, too. But both he and Chancellor Adenauer of Germany remained on tricky political footing after the Paris conference, and both were forced to do business with dissatisfied factions which would like to delay ratification once more pending talks with Russia.

You will recall that Adenauer put through Germany's original ratification of EDC only by some tricky political maneuvering which resulted in a court fight over its legitimacy. In the new parliamentary debate he will be divested of some of the dramatic supranational features of EDC which emboldened some of his supporters before.

This time it is not only France upon which ratification will depend, but on Germany also.

Presumably, one of the objects of the Adenauer visit to the United States at this time is to obtain working agreements which will help him in this respect.

Relocation Of Highway Under Way

BANGOR — Construction of a new road and relocation of the portion of Legislative Route 166, Section 9, connecting Bangor and East Bangor commenced here yesterday.

Ernest J. May, Northampton County superintendent of highways, announced that the road would be closed to traffic and that traffic out of Bangor will be rerouted on S. Main St. to Messinger St. and on to Richmond Ave. to Five Points, two miles north of East Bangor. Incoming traffic will use the same route, May said.

The portion of highway to be relocated is the highway that runs past the water-filled Washington Slate Quarry, long a contention of interested Bangor and East Bangor citizens to be an extreme traffic hazard.

This final action has been brought about by petitions of the State Belt Citizens Safety Committee asking that the highway receive immediate attention. Contract bids for the construction were advertised on Sept. 17. The contract has been awarded to Collins and Maxwell, contractors of Allentown.

Efforts were made for many years to have something done about the hazardous proximity of the highway to the water-filled quarry 150 feet deep. A few months ago a move was afoot to fill in the quarry to eliminate the condition but the action failed to materialize. The substitute plan of relocating the highway was made by the citizens committee.

Modern methods can unload 14,000 tons of iron ore from a ship in less than three hours.

Government Loses Test On Dismissal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration today lost its fight for a Supreme Court ruling that the President has broad powers to remove federal jobs from Civil Service classifications and make the holders subject to summary firing.

Atty. Gen. Brownell had asked the high tribunal to review and overturn a Court of Appeals decision here holding that the White House lacks such authority.

"Palpably," Brownell said in his appeal, "the decision has a significance which goes far beyond the particular facts. . . . It places a broad limitation upon the capacity of the chief executive to manage the federal establishment in the manner which he believes will best promote effective administration."

The government worker specifically is Leo A. Roth, a Justice Department lawyer who was fired from his $10,800-a-year job on July 31, 1953.

The Appeals Court ordered Roth reinstated, but this was not done pending the outcome of Brownell's appeal.

There was no immediate comment from the Justice Department on its next move. Roth is entitled under the Appeals Court decision—which the Supreme Court today left in effect—to back pay from the date of his dismissal, less any money he may have earned in private employment.

The issue involved in the appeal was whether the President may reclassify jobs from the classified, or protected, status to the non-classified, or unprotected, status. This was done in the case of Roth, whose job was reclassified to the unprotected status by an executive order.

Vote-Buying Charge Laid To Democrats

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25 (AP)—Mrs. Gaynelle Dixon, Republican candidate for secretary of internal affairs, today called on Democratic officials here for an explanation of what three housewives had said were attempts to use government surplus food to buy votes in the Nov. 2 election.

Speaking before a group of women at a luncheon in nearby Brackenridge, Mrs. Dixon said:

"This is the only county (Allegheny, in Pennsylvania where a political party label is used to designate necessity and the right to public relief.

"I think—and decency demands—that Democratic political leaders here make some explanation; otherwise we have no choice but to believe that such tactics—such trafficking in human misery—is also a part of their campaign."

Three Pittsburgh women told county authorities last week that two members of a food registration board gave them surplus food or stamps for the food and told them to register as Democrats.

William N. Nicholls, investigator for the county commissioners, said during the weekend that he had found no evidence to substantiate the charges.

School Union Permits Pooling Of Resources

By Leonard Randolph
THE PRIMARY purpose of any combination of school districts into one unit are aimed at the provision of a better school system for all the students involved.

This is, basically, the end result of a school union district such as the one now proposed for Stroudsburg, Stroud and Delaware Water Gap.

The word "better" is, of course, a varying term. What seems "better" to one man may seem distinctly less than good to another.

There is only one yardstick school districts can therefore use in deciding what will constitute a more beneficial education system. That yardstick comes from experience—the experience of teaching children from varied home and educational backgrounds over a period of many years.

Let's look at the Stroudsburg-Stroud-Water Gap proposal on this basis.

First of all—there is a definite need for the standardization of the implements of education on the lower level, school administrators feel.

This "standardization" would result in the use of the same basic textbooks in elementary schools. Since all the students in all three districts would later be attending the same high school and taking the same basic courses in secondary training, the standardization of texts tends to give each child an "even start" and an equal chance in high school.

Another early result of a union school district would be the availability of additional art courses and special education facilities to children in all three districts through the centralized office of the union district.

This standard preparation for secondary education would give each student the same background in the varied subjects he may wish to take in high school.

Such equal preparation, school administrators feel, helps provide a well-balanced diet. The well-balanced child, in a sense, gets more out of the formative secondary years than does a child who enters a class without the same preparation as his fellow students.

The principal argument against standardization is generally this: That the use of the same texts often produces a kind of assembly line student, each with the same ideas, reactions and attitudes.

Anyone who has lived even part of his life with a teen-ager will realize that no two children think, act or react in exactly the same way, of course.

Anyone who has sat in a classroom and heard a teacher instruct his students will know that no two teachers think or teach precisely the same way.

The provision of a standardized text does not mean that thinking or teaching will necessarily be the same.

The standard text system does give each child the same basic approach to education, whether the subject is arithmetic, reading or history. From this basic approach the student, should—and generally will—draw his own conclusions and make his own adjustments to the subject.

In one other major area, the combined school district offers greater advantage to the large number of students. This occurs in the field of extra-curricular activity.

As educators have learned during the past 20 years, the well-balanced student has an interest, not only in his school work, but in a variety of other things indirectly connected with the school.

Included in these interests are sports, music (both instrumental and vocal), art and other allied fields to which the student may become attracted. Although school time is often allotted for these interests, they account for a very small percentage of the total school day.

The stimulation of student-interest in music and sports becomes somewhat easier in the larger school district, simply because an instructor or adviser may be provided for all the students on a part-time basis in each school.

Although a smaller district may be unable to pay the salary of a full-time music instructor, for example, in combination with a larger district or more, there will be no great taxation of funds.

Three districts can better afford the services of a highly-qualified art instructor, a general music supervisor and other specially-trained personnel than can one.

One of the great strengths of any combined school operation is in the simple fact that the resources with which it can work are pooled.

The Drunken Driver

When is a driver drunk? This question is almost on a par with how high is up? Knowing a driver is intoxicated is one thing, but proving it is something else again. This is one of the most difficult problems Pennsylvania law enforcement officers face. It is not uncommon for persons who have been charged with drunken driving to escape conviction, not just once but several times, because of the inability of the state to make out a case.

It is a problem that is not peculiar to Pennsylvania. Every state has it, but many of them have taken steps to do something about it. Our Commonwealth well could follow their example.

These other states have legalized a chemical test for alcoholic intoxication, putting the basis for drunken driving arrest on a sound scientific basis. The accuracy and fairness of the chemical test are attested to by a recital of its advocates—the American Medical Association, the American Bar Association, the National Safety Council, the National Committee for Traffic Safety and the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

In New York State, the taking of the test is practically compulsory for an accused drunken driver at the moment of his arrest. If the driver refuses to take it, his license can be suspended pending a hearing. The compulsory aspect came under fire last week at the annual meeting of the American Automobile Association.

This poses a "threat of indiscriminate disregard of personal liberty," the AAA asserts. But the AAA does not challenge the chemical tests as such. It approves the test when it is operated on a "permissive" basis as is now the case in 14 other states—Arizona, Indiana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Maine, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin. In these states, drivers accused of being drunk can refuse to take the test without having their license suspended.

We cannot go along with the AAA's stand. After all, driving of an automobile is a privilege, not a right. And a scientific test can prove a driver's innocence as easily as it can point at his guilt. The chemical test remains but one factor of many, not the only one, in a person's trial for drunken driving.

But whether compulsory or permissive, the legalizing of this scientific approach to drunken driving remains a job for the next Pennsylvania Legislature.

Of all the hazards contributing to our appalling toll of highway death, injury and damage, one of the worst is the drunken driver. Pennsylvania law enforcement officers should be armed with the right to use the proven chemical test for alcoholic intoxication. It is far too easy now for drunken drivers to beat the rap entirely or get off on a lesser charge with far less punishment than they deserve.

Best Kind of Aid

The amount of 15 million dollars sounds pretty small in relation to our spending for foreign aid over the years, but a new item of that size in the budget of the Foreign Operations Administration is a most encouraging development.

It is for contracts under which 40 American universities will carry on technical assistance programs in 26 foreign countries.

The "Point Four" concept of helping people to help themselves is a sound one. It is even more desirable, and more likely to succeed, when the American part of the project is carried by college and university representatives rather than by Government agents.

In most of the world, respect for institutions of learning is greater than it is here, and any emphasis we can place on education's importance in our system will benefit our national prestige.

We have shared much wealth with the less fortunate, an activity which cannot go on indefinitely. But we should always be ready to share knowledge.

George Sokolsky Says...

Congress Should Study Trend Affecting Cost Of Campaigns And "Endorsements"

There can be no objection to any citizens organizing themselves into a committee to influence public opinion, provided it is all done on a level up and up, with finances all made public. When such a committee contributes financially to a candidate, that must, under the law, be made public, but it is not necessary for a list to be made known of those who contribute to the committee. That is a voluntary action on the part of any committee.

It is unseemly to question the right of the gentlemen who compose the National Committee for an Effective Congress to provide research and technical assistance to members of Congress of both parties who are endeavoring to restore a climate in which there can be sober resolution of national problems. If a Senator lacks the ability or the staff to prepare the material for his speeches or even to write the speeches, he probably will accept manuscripts from wherever they come. Some speeches read as though they were produced by a stamping machine.

Undoubtedly the voters who elected the particular Senators and Representatives so aided assumed that only they were their constituents. They must have assumed that they were selecting able men who could take care of themselves. It is also probable that the aforesaid constituents had no notion that a group of men whose offices are at 680 Fifth Avenue New York City were contributing funds to candidates in various parts of the country because no candidate has yet publicly proclaimed allegiance to such a committee. On this subject, the National Committee for Effective Congress says:

"This year, we have already forwarded substantial aid to several outstanding Senatorial candidates. Your help in this connection will be pinpointed on those contests where it will do most to elect the best possible Senate for the six critical years ahead."

Also they say: "Please write your check as large as possible—and send it, made out to the National Committee for an Effective Congress, today."

Such an appeal for funds is signed by Oscar Hammerstein II, Sidney H. Schur and Telford Taylor. There is nothing in this appeal for money to show who is President of this organization, but there is a "Campaign Director," Maurice Rosenblatt, and an "Executive Secretary," George E. Agnew. There is also a "Board of Advisors," which includes the following among others: Stringfellow Barr, George H. Combs, Gardner Jackson, Isidore Lipschutz, Robert R. Nathan, Arthur M. Schlesinger, Robert E. Sherwood, Michael Straight, Nathan Straus, Sumner Welles. I do not know whom these advisors advise.

It is interesting to note that in 1952, this National Committee for an Effective Congress endorsed the following candidates for the United States Senate: Dennis Chavez (D, N. Mex.), John S. Cooper (R, Ky.), Ralph E. Flanders (R, Vt.), Dwight P. Griswold (R, Nebr.), Irving M.

Ives (R, N. Y.), Henry M. Jackson (D, Wash.), Harley M. Kilgore (D, W. Va.), Mike Mansfield (D, Mont.), Frederick G. Payne (R, Maine), W. Stuart Symington (D, Mo.).

The word used is "endorsed." Whether that means that they also aided these candidates financially does not appear in the literature, which does say:

"Contributions are allocated to candidates on the basis of where they are most needed and will do the most good, as determined through up-to-the-minute evaluation of the progress of each campaign."

"Support is given only where there is a clear choice between the candidates running."

"Support is given only where there is a clear possibility that it can affect the outcome of the election."

The theory of our system of government is that the voters of each Congressional district and of each state choose those who are to represent them in Congress. It was never intended that citizens of other areas should choose for them or should hand-pick their candidates. Nowadays a number of groups try to do exactly that for citizens all over the country, some by publishing lists of those who voted right or wrong, some by shoveling campaign funds into particular districts. The cost of running for public office has become prohibitive, so that candidates are often forced to seek funds where they ought not to be sought. Television, in particular, has become a candidate's problem, particularly if one side has the money and the other side is short. It might be worth Congress' while to make a study of this trend.

John Wayne—"I never think of doing a picture calling for one of those free-for-all swing-as-you-enter fights without conditioning myself by using the subways and buses. And in a bus or subway train I get the same amount of mayhem without a chair, a table leg, an iron vase or a piano stool."

Roy Rogers—"Nothing can happen in a western or rodeo that doesn't happen in subways. The brahma steer and broncho are not essential. I get the same tossing around without them by dropping tokens into the slot and trusting to luck."

Jack Dempsey—"I was one subway trip short or I would never have lost to Tunney."

Arctic natives, because of their isolation, often are relatively free from some of the widespread infectious diseases, such as influenza, measles and the common cold.

One half of the meat produced in the world is beef and veal.

The Once Over

The Subway And The Press Agent New York has hired a public relations firm to present bus and subway travel in a favorable light. We may now see an all-out effort to popularize the king-size bruise and present personal combat to and from work as a key to glowing health, vitamins in subway straps, perhaps. Tired blood revitalized by a battle to get through a crowded doorway. And maybe the "filtered" dirty look between fellow passengers.

There is, we presume, the usual slogan possibility... "Look Eopped, Feel Eopped, Be Eopped!"... "The Maul That Refreshing!"... "Be Slap-Happy!"

Go Sluggo... "It's Smart To Be Rumped..." "Enjoy Your Roughage..." "Look for the Bus Driver With That Extra Mildness..." "Ride on Bus Seats Made With Vintage Upholstery..." "Look for the Sign of the Flying Wedge..." "Tired of Your Old Scar? Bring It In and Get an Allowance on a New Scar, Tell 'em Socko Sent You..." "Ask for the Bus Driver With the Iritanits Removed..." "Watch Your Belt Line and Give Belt for Belt..." "Use the Subway and See Your Dentist Twice a Day..." "Don't Kill Your Wife: Let the Rush-Hour Bus Do the Dirty Work..." And since this is the age of the endorsement and testimony by celebrities, why not the following:

Rocky Marciano—"I use the subways regularly. They keep me fit for my next fight. And it's so easy. Just slip, zip, clip, rip, and it's all over."

Looking At Life

—by Erich Brandeis

We Emphasize Too Much The Physical Heartbeat

The human heart is one thing to the scientist, another to the poet. To the scientist it is "a hollow, muscular pouch, whose interior is divided by a longitudinal partition into two cavities," etc., etc. He will talk about valves and ventricles. He will measure its beats with the electrocardiograph. A broken heart to the physician may be a coronary thrombosis or some other thing with a high sounding foreign name.

But to the poet—"Would you have songs endure? Build on the human heart!" wrote Robert Browning, and "Kind hearts are more than coronets," according to Alfred Tennyson.

A little while ago a group of European exchange students was taken to the White House where it met President Eisenhower and had quite a chat with him.

After the visit one of the kids was asked what he thought of our President.

"Oh, I like him," said the girl. "He smiles with his heart."

And there, in five words, is perhaps the best description ever given of Mr. Eisenhower and the enormous personal hold he has on the people.

Thousands of words have been written about him. Many writers have been trying to analyze his popularity, a lot of others have been wondering just what it is that makes him such an attractive personality, regardless of what side of the political fence you are on.

He smiles with his heart—that's it, and that is something nobody can fake or simulate.

You don't have to be an Eisenhower to smile with your heart. If you do, all those who meet you will feel it instinctively. They will react to it and, if they have any hearts at all, will reciprocate and give you their heart-smiles, too.

The other day Father Ambrose Hyland, for many years chaplain at Clinton State Prison in Dannemora, N. Y., died in his burning automobile.

The doctors think he had a heart attack, dropped his burning cigar, and the car caught fire. That would be the "heart" the scientists talk about.

But Father Hyland had another kind of heart. It beat for the prisoners in his care. He started a church within the prison walls and called it the Chapel of St. Dismas or "The Church of the Good Thief." He wanted to bring "a little bit of Heaven" to his charges, and contributions came from laymen and friends of all faiths.

In a book on Dannemora, one of the country's toughest prisons, Father Hyland was quoted as dismissing Dante's words, "Abandon hope, all ye who enter here," and substituting instead, "That which you bring here in your heart cannot be taken from you at the gate."

Sometimes I wonder whether we do not place entirely too much importance on our physical heart, the heart of the scientist, and neglect that other, that wonderful heart of which the poets speak.

I wonder, too, if there would not be much less medical heart trouble in this world if we paid more attention to the spiritual heart that is in all of us.

Why don't we try it some time?

Try and Stop Me

Every week some advertising geniuses are prevented by TV authorities from introducing commercials likely to offend sensitive listeners one way or another. Some of the rulings cause raised eyebrows, and even howls of protest from the frustrated ad-men. Recently, for instance, there was quite a to-do when a skin ointment company ran into a stone wall trying to get an okay on a new filmed commercial. It showed cannibals refusing to eat an American glamor girl because she had so many pimples!

The death of Will Hays reminded Hy Gardner of the first list of "doubts" Mr. Hays promulgated when he was appointed custodian of film makers' morals. There were twelve major "doubts" on the list, prompting the show-business bible, Variety, to headline the story, "Hays Two Up on Moses!"

The longest siege in history was the siege of Tyre by Nebuchadnezzar. It was carried on for 13 years.

Ike Urges Speed On All Public Works Planning

Prior Planning—There has been a significant backstage development on a possible public works program next year.

President Eisenhower has directed every government agency involved in such a program to complete all the planning on public works projects within their jurisdiction.

This order was transmitted in a private letter by Budget Director Rowland Hughes.

He specifically states the agencies will not ask for funds to begin work on their projects, but to get everything ready up to that point. Hughes explains that preparedness is the basic purpose of the new move.

"Emphasis of all public works projects will be given to the development of plans for high-priority projects to a state where they can qualify for construction at a later time, consistent with prevailing budgetary policy," states Hughes. "This emphasis on survey and planning is in furtherance of a policy of initiating construction of new projects only after adequate plans have been completed. Therefore, planning should be composed of carefully selected projects, the plans for which can be brought to early completion."

"Emphasis will also be given to carrying forward general investigations and advance planning of essential public works, including those required for future economic growth, to such a stage that the federal government would be ready to effectively accelerate its public works program, at a desirable time."

"Where agencies do not have a large backlog of authorized projects, emphasis will be given to general investigations and surveys and such preliminary plans as are necessary to determine the suitability of projects for authorization. In the case of construction, including major rehabilitation and additions, carried on under general legislative authority, emphasis will be given to preliminary surveys and plans and to the revision where necessary of existing plans for such work in order that construction could be started promptly."

"With respect to both general investigations and advance planning high priority should be given to relatively small projects having a wide geographical dispersion, which are urgently needed and economically feasible, and on which construction could be started quickly and could be completed at an economic rate within 18 months or less."

Note: Attorney General Herbert Brownell has no intention of giving the Atomic Energy Commission an advisory opinion on the legality of provisions of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract. Atomic Chairman Lewis Strauss asked for such advice, particularly on the section involving tax payments under the proposed deal, but Brownell intends to keep hands off this bitter fight. He will express his views only if asked to do so by President Eisenhower.

Straw in the Wind—The British report an ominous development regarding Red-threatened Formosa.

The Communists are buying large quantities of life preservers and the materials to make them in Hongkong. The British estimate that more than 300,000 of these devices have been purchased so far.

Obvious use of this equipment is for troops making amphibious assaults.

Life preservers and the materials in them are not on the anti-Red embargo list. The British say the Communists are paying good prices and are having no difficulty in getting all this equipment they want.

All Set—The famed "king-makers" of the American Legion have already picked the National Commanders for the next two years. According to Legion insiders, the secret choices are J. Addington Wagner, Mich., who will be "elected" at the 1955 convention, and W. C. Daniel, Va., who will get the nod in 1956. The Veterans Administration will pay another big dividend early in 1955 to policy holders of the National Service Life Insurance. More than $190,000,000 will go to 5,000,000 World War II veterans. The exact amount will be determined at a meeting of actuaries in Washington next week. This dividend will bring the total paid to NSLI policy holders to more than $4,200,000,000 since 1948.

National Guard Is Very Vital

—by H. G. Heller

Because of the presence in this community of one of the most famous and colorful National Guard Units, with a great war and peacetime record which began in 1912, the position of the National Guard Association on national reserve forces is of more than ordinary interest.

This week the National Guard Association of the U. S. issued a statement of policy for these reasons:

To put an end to the confusion in the public mind concerning our national policies for effective reserve forces of the Army and Air Force caused by the conflicting plans, directives and statements emanating from the Department of Defense and other governmental agencies.

To show the necessity for a firm and consistent national policy on military service, so that young men of our country can feel that there is "some justice, some reason and some predictability in their lives."

To strengthen and further develop the National Guard System, historically imbedded in our military traditions, in order to increase the ability of the Army and Air National Guard to perform their first line reserve missions.

Summary of the Guard's policy is: Dual State and Federal status of the Guard and Air Guard must be preserved, under which membership in both can be acquired only by initial membership in Guard and Air Guard of the several states.

Procurement of personnel for Guard and Air Guard should be on voluntary basis to maximum possible extent.

If voluntary procurement fails to produce adequate numbers, then additional personnel needed to bring both to authorized strengths shall be inducted direct from civil life through Selective Service System.

All personnel, so inducted or volunteering for service in Guard or Air Guard units shall undergo a period of full time basic training.

Length of service in all the reserve components shall be based upon the amount of training performed by the individual concerned.

Personnel so inducted who fail to perform their duties satisfactorily in the Guard and Air Guard or other reserve components shall be subjected to be ordered to active federal duty for a period not to exceed two years.

The necessity for the United States to "Keep Your Guard Up!" is obvious to all of us. But we agree there should be an end to current confusion over reserve policies so all youth can safely plan some life pattern.

Evangelist Conducting Services

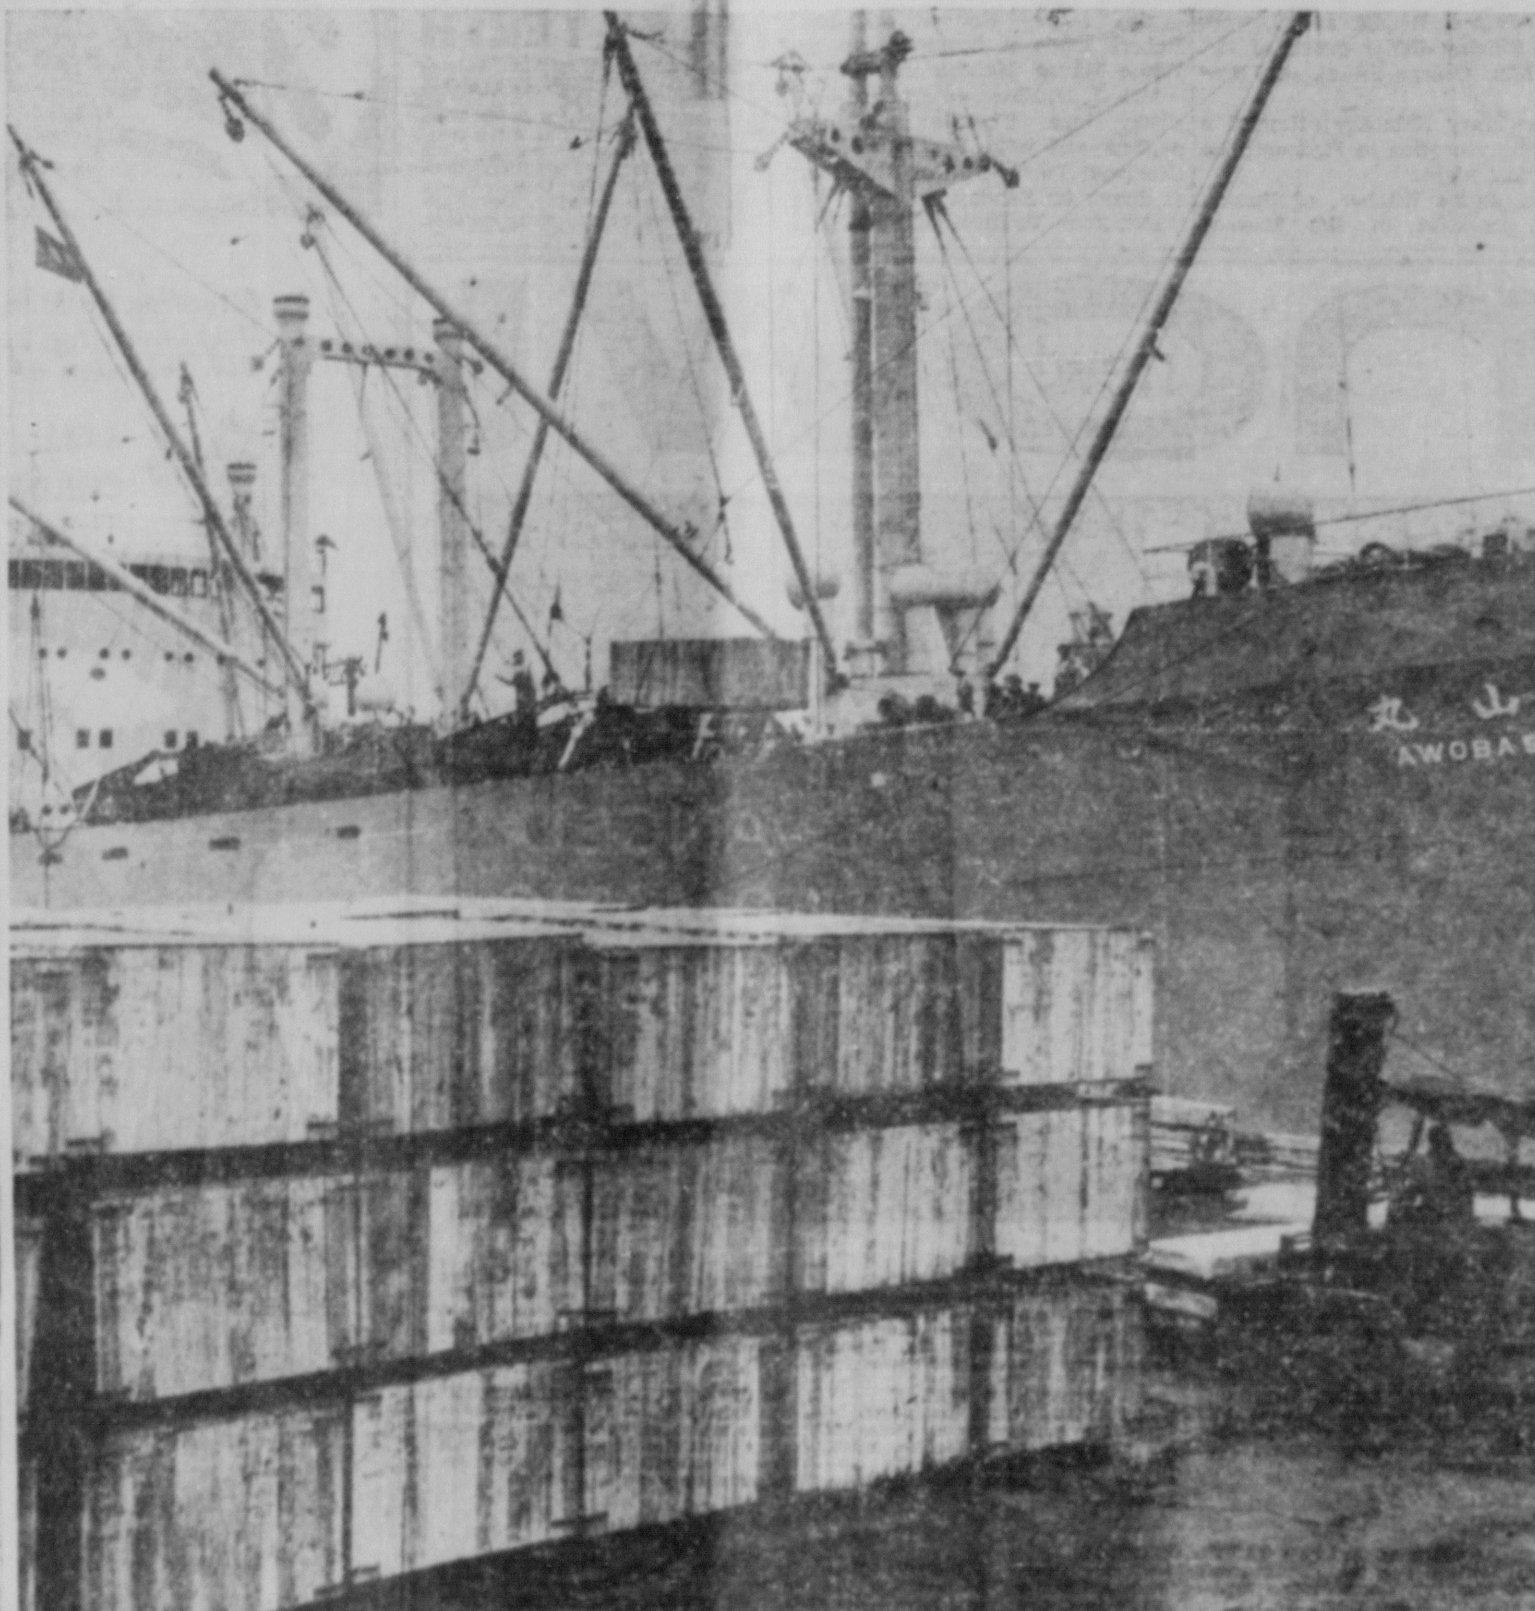

POCONO LAKE—A revival is now in progress at the Pilgrim Holiness Church here, Rev. John A. Gangaware announced yesterday. Rev. H. L. Runkle, a general conference evangelist of the Ohio district, is speaker at all the meetings. Special illustrative art work is presented each night by Mrs. Runkle. Mr. Runkle is rated a "colorful" speaker because of unusual experiences before he entered the ministry. A portion of his life story will be given Friday at 7:30 p. m. All services—each week-day night—start at 7:30. Mr. Gangaware yesterday invited all persons to attend.

EASY LIFE for 'ATOMIC ANIMALS'

A VARIETY of animals are living it up in controlled comfort in a million-dollar animal hotel in Upton, N. Y. There's no need for humans to be envious, though, because the Brookhaven laboratory is using animals in research into radiation effects in life processes. Environmental conditions in the biology research building are rigidly controlled so that no variations can affect the animal's physical and emotional well being. Some 132 thermostats monitor temperature and humidity conditions in 17 rooms plus other laboratories. The animals are exposed to degrees of bombardment by neutrons and gamma rays and then examined for the effects. Other research involves the study of radioactive "tracers," which are routed through the body and tracked by Geiger counters. The new building can house as many as 12,500 animals.

209 Mergers Under FTC Investigation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Chairman Edward F. Howrey of the Federal Trade Commission announced today the FTC has ordered "a speedy but thorough investigation of the current wave of mergers."

Howrey said the purpose would be to provide facts for the commission, the Department of Justice, Congress and the public about the "post-Korea merger pattern."

Atty. Gen. Brownell, and Stanley M. Barnes, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust activities, have both said recently the Justice Department is keeping an eye on mergers.

Howrey said the FTC currently has under study 209 mergers or company acquisitions, and noted that the commission has filed charges in three cases in the baking, paper, and steel scrap fields.

Recalling "the trust forming era of 1887-1904" and "a significant merger movement in the 1920s," Howrey said:

"Both the earlier waves were regarded with considerable alarm by the public and in turn by Congress. There is no question that the present merger movement must be carefully assessed."

A report is expected within a few months.

During the first two quarters of this year, according to the FTC figures, there were 295 mergers or acquisitions of businesses in the manufacturing and mining fields.

Howrey's announcement indicated the FTC study would not be limited to manufacturing and mining, but would take in the entire corporate field.

He said the FTC will look into recent mergers with the following specific points in mind:

1. The desire for more diversified products.
2. The desire to lessen competition.
3. The desire of small and medium size firms to grow rapidly by business consolidations in the interest of being able to compete more effectively with already established larger firms.
4. The extent to which acquisitions were caused by the financial failure of firms acquired.
5. The desire of firms to integrate into their own operations a higher stage of fabrication or production of raw materials.

Prosperous Year Noted

In this great, growing, productive land of ours, to put behind us the rash of fears that for so long have haunted some among us—fear of war, fear of unemployment, fear of ourselves—fear of the future. Certainly, we now know that one such fear—the fear of a paralyzing depression—can be safely laid away."

Eisenhower said unemployment has been "steadily declining" since last spring but that "still more progress is needed."

In another reference that could be taken as an indirect slap at Democratic criticism, Eisenhower said the unemployment level is "much lower today" than during the "recession of 1949 and 50" when the Democrats were in power. But he said "there is certainly no comfort for us" in that comparison. He added that there is none, either, "in the fact that unemployment today is less than one-third its level in the years 1933 to 1910, when as many as 10 million Americans were out of jobs and couldn't find them."

Referring to his prediction of national production totaling 500 billion dollars at the end of the next decade, as compared with 265 billion at present, the President said a number of things must be done to achieve that goal. He then set forth steps which he has listed in the past:

"First, we must develop a foreign economic program that will expand trade, encourage investment, help bring about currency convertibility and reduce the need for direct aid to other countries."

"Second, we must continue to reduce the cost of government so we can have more tax cuts."

"Third, we must give America a modern highway system."

"Fourth we must continue to improve our farm program."

"Fifth, we must speed the conversion of the atom to the peaceful service of mankind."

"Sixth, we must work for more and better schools and homes. We must improve opportunities for teachers. We must further improve our social security system. We must provide better protection against the hardships of unemployment, ill health, poverty and old age."

"Seventh, in partnership with states, local communities and private citizens, we must develop the water, power and soil resources of our great river valleys."

Eisenhower's host, the National Security Industrial Assn., presented to him the first annual Forrestal Award in recognition of outstanding contribution by the chief executive to relations between government and industry. The late James V. Forrestal was the nation's first secretary of defense, and Eisenhower devoted the first part of his speech to high praise of Forrestal.

SMOKE RISES FROM AN OIL REFINERY in Wilmington, Calif., adding to the choking bluish smog that has plagued the Los Angeles area for almost three weeks. Gov. Goodwin J. Knight has urged 25 refineries to shut down in a test to determine their contribution to the eye-smarting, throat-burning condition. The oil industry considers the proposal impractical and indicates that they will not voluntarily comply.

High Court Rejects Attack On State Fair Trade Laws

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Supreme Court brushed aside today four attacks on the legality of state "fair trade" laws—which give manufacturers the right to fix minimum retail prices for their products.

All states have such a law against price cutting except Texas, Vermont, Missouri and the District of Columbia. The state laws are backed up by the federal McGuire Act, which Congress passed after the Supreme Court ruled that an amendment to the Sherman antitrust law, known as the Miller-Tydings Act, did not compel retailers, who did not sign "fair trade" agreements to sell at fixed prices.

The McGuire act, unlike the Miller-Tydings act, specifically provides that a "fair trade" agreement signed by a manufacturer and one or more retailers in a state is binding on all retailers including those who didn't sign.

Validity of the McGuire Act itself was directly attacked in two of the four "fair trade" cases which the high court today refused to review.

The four appeals came from New York and New Jersey. In dismissing two of the appeals, the court said no substantial federal question was involved. In the other two, it merely announced refusal to review.

Still another "fair trade" case remains on the court's docket. While it appears to be similar to those which the court refused to hear, there always is a possibility the court may find something in it to warrant a review.

But barring this possibility, opponents of "fair trade" will have to look to Congress, and "fair trade" sentiment always has been strong there.

The court also refused again a hearing to Caryl Chessman, California-kidnap-rapest who wrote a widely read book, "Cell 2455, Row" while conducting a six-year fight to escape execution in the gas chamber.

The court said its refusal to hear the case would not prejudice any application by Chessman for a writ of habeas corpus in federal court in California.

It was the seventh time the court had ruled against Chessman in one way or another.

He won his fourth reprieve from death July 29, less than 24 hours before he was scheduled to enter the gas chamber. A justice of the California Supreme Court granted Chessman his latest reprieve to give the Supreme Court time to consider the new appeal.

In San Francisco, one of Chessman's attorneys, Jerome Duffy, said the court's ruling made it possible for the attorneys to ask for a complete new hearing.

"We are grateful to the court for opening a way to test the authenticity of the transcript on appeal," Duffy said. "It's very encouraging. It's about what we were hoping for."

Pennzoil with Z-7

Gets Right to Heart of Power Problems

Engineers liken the valve train, shown above, to the human heart. Only when it "beats" smoothly and in perfect time, can an engine deliver the full horsepower built into it. But so closely are the parts of this valve train fitted, that even the thinnest layer of gummy deposits can slow them down. Pennzoil with Z-7 eliminates these deposits completely, freeing up the valve action, and unlocking full horsepower during the entire life of a crankcase fill.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

This has been the best season for Halloween hayrides we've had in many a year, and the youngsters are taking full advantage of it. It's getting a little more difficult each year to find roads for a real honest-to-goodness hayride with horse and wagon, and most of the groups make-do with trucks, but the songs and the giggles are much the same.

And each year, there's a new group joining the fun. When you've followed their antics since they were Brownies, it's sort of a shock to realize that here's another generation of girls old enough to invite boys.

Remember the sleigh-rides we used to have in grade school? Every snowfall, there'd be teams waiting outside the school for whole roomfuls to go riding.

Makes you sort of envious, remembering. Wouldn't be surprised if some of this polking around these days wasn't a grown-up sublimation of Halloweening.

Anyway, door-to-door politicians and tricks-or-treats Halloweeners both had a little extra flip of excitement last night with the air-raid drill dimming the lights, stopping the traffic, and sending them all to the nearest shelter.

Bessie Elwine Feted On Ninth Birthday

A birthday party was held in honor of Bessie Elwine on her ninth birthday at the home of her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anthony, Chipperfield Drive, on Sunday.

Games were played, gifts were opened and refreshments were served featuring a birthday cake, white trimmed with pink. Funny hats and favors were given each guest.

Anniversary Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hagerman of 922 North Ninth St., Stroudsburg, recently celebrated their wedding anniversary. They and their three small children were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Van Auker, Billy Sidloski was also a guest at the dinner.

This column should, I think, be forwarded to the President of the Hallmark greeting card company. For, if his concern were to offer a prize for an endorsement, it would probably never find one so sincere as this at any price.

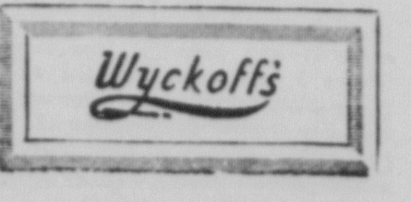

After Friday's column about all the new king size Advent cards had appeared, I stood in our gift department chatting with Hazel Henning when Mrs. Alison Hester walked by with her son, Keith. Stopping to exchange a few words with Hazel, Mrs. Hester turned to me and remarked, "I want to tell you how much I enjoyed today's column. It reminded me of something very funny that happened in our family a year ago when Keith was seven."

"It was around Valentine's Day and the children were making Valentines for their families, at school. Keith decided to make one for his teacher, and arrived home all excited about it. To hear him tell it, it was a truly glorious thing, all frills and furbelows. 'You know, Mother,' he said, 'it was so beautiful, I had a notion to turn it over and write Hallmark on the back so she'd think I bought it!'"

In answer to the telephone calls about when our Wyckoff Halloween party for the kiddies will be held, it is scheduled for Monday afternoon, November 1st, the same day as our town observance. We look forward to this event each year here at Wyckoff's, and there's a hearty welcome, big as a giant Jack o' Lantern for every youngster. The hour? Four p. m.

One of our readers demands to know just how much of my shopping I do at Wyckoff's. That's easy . . . at least 99%. If I can possibly buy at our store—and I can think of only a few items that aren't available here—I do so. When I cannot, I look elsewhere in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg. I hold to the theory that it's far more pleasant to shop in my own home town than anywhere else . . . also, that values are better, styles are just as smart, and I don't wear myself to a frazzle buffeting ill-mannered crowds of people. It's rare indeed that a dollar of mine goes for merchandise anywhere but on the home front, and I like it that way!

If you haven't come in as yet to see the shoe bargains offered in Carlton Rohrbach's department, better hurry! There are some very smart styles in a wide choice of colors and fabrics at give-away prices. Talk about shoes walking out of the store! These are running, and breaking records at that.

STUDENTS of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College are still walking on air today, as memories of last Friday night's 14-13 victory over West Chester continue to linger fresh in their minds. It was the first time since 1942 that the Warriors earned a favorable decision over their "big" rival on the schedule. The charges of Coach Gene Martin have come close in recent years, but were not quite able to turn the trick.

The Warriors won by a single point last Friday, but actually could have inflicted more damage if they so desired. ESSTC took possession of the ball on the West Chester 10 in the late seconds of the contest, as the Rams failed to make a first down. Instead of going for the touchdown the Martinmen simply ran out the clock and protected their one-point margin of victory. The red and black color bearers didn't want to take any chances of losing possession of the ball in the late seconds and enable West Chester to take a desperation fling at victory.

ESSTC had the ball on the West Chester two-yard stripe when the final whistle sounded. The whistle was the signal for a huge celebration, one for which every Normal Hill student has been waiting for a dozen years. ESSTC students marched on the field, paraded in down town West Chester and in general let off steam that had collected for 12 years and proved too much for the safety valve. It was a glorious victory and the visiting fans and players weren't missing this chance to celebrate.

Pre-game information forwarded to this reporter revealed that approximately 200 students would follow the Warriors to West Chester. Actually, however, 400 were on hand and continuously presented the Martinmen with the support needed to make victory possible. Even when it appeared as if the Rams would break the game wide open in the second round, the large Normal Hill rooting section stuck to its guns and never gave up the ship.

In this writer's opinion it is the fine spirit being shown at the local college this year that has brought the school one of its most successful football campaigns in history, even though three games still remain to be played on the schedule. Plenty of pep and noise from the cheering section is bound to rub off on the players. If this new found spirit proves strong enough to carry through the coming winter and spring months East Stroudsburg State Teachers College may enjoy its most outstanding athletic campaign in the history. There never has been or never will be a substitute for spirit.

People from this area who attended the game were high in their praise of the ESSTC line, coached by George Ockershausen. The front line Warriors outchugged West Chester's line throughout the game and it was this factor that gave the visiting ball carriers an opportunity to rip off yard gains after another. Although Denny Roth, Warren Hoeffner and Charley Shaw appeared to be the big heroes for the Warriors, every member of the club that saw action was actually a hero.

It was truly a team victory, with every member of the visiting contingent giving that little bit of something extra that made victory possible. The change to the long habit of losing to West Chester that everyone hit a new peak of happiness. Imagine the great amount of pressure Roth must have been under as he stepped back to attempt the extra point following the second and final ESSTC touchdown.

The score was deadlocked at 13-13 and at that point there was a chance that the final score would result in a tie, providing Roth didn't convert the extra counter. A death-like silence fell over the large crowd that prior to this time had presented a continuous noise of a near hysterical nature. But Roth, probably the only calm person on the field, booted the ball squarely between the uprights and the Warriors were in front to stay. Denny's extra point and field goal kicking ability in the past two years have saved ESSTC from several defeats.

Runs of 80 and 87 yards by Warren Hoeffner and Charley Shaw were the big thrills for the Warriors, especially the 87-yard scamper by Shaw. Charley, a student teacher at Stroudsburg High, pulled his long distance haul in the last period to tie the game, just as it appeared that West Chester was going to win another contest. Hoeffner's 80-yard punt return in the first period gave ESSTC its initial score. Warren's jaunt was a great boost to the club.

Mountaineers Come From Behind To Win

PALMERTON—A scrappy Stroudsburg High School junior varsity football team battled from behind here yesterday to score a 13-6 victory over Palmerton High's yearlings.

The victory was the second straight and second of the season for the youthful gridgers who opened the present campaign by dropping their first two outings. The Mountaineers now feature a record of two wins and the same number of setbacks.

Palmerton broke the scoreless deadlock near the end of the first period when Jim Roth slashed off tackle for an 11-yard scamper and a touchdown. The placement for the extra point met with failure.

Although the Mountaineers, coached by George Metropoulos, failed to score at anytime in the first half, they kept battling away until they finally broke into paydirt in the first minute of the third round.

The touchdown that deadlocked the score came on a 70-yard play that was perfectly executed. Ronald Stopp, Portland, tossed a 10-yard aerial to Roger Ray, and the fleet-footed Stroudsburg back raced 60 yards for the score.

Ray's touchdown scamper was made possible through his own running ability and some solid blocking by his teammates.

Stroudsburg attempted to add the extra point on a pass from Ronald Stopp to Ronald Darr, but the aerial fell incomplete.

A hard charging Stroudsburg line forced Palmerton to fumble midway in the fourth period and an alert visiting lineman fell on the ball.

The Mountaineers began a 40-yard scoring drive at this point and Harry Miller went the last eight yards on an off-tackle slant to give Stroudsburg a 12-6 lead.

Stroudsburg added the extra point for insurance when Bob Kassay duplicated Miller's play and crashed off tackle for the score.

The visitors protected their 13-6 margin through the last few minutes of play with the Blue Bombers making a serious scoring threat.

Metropoulos used the following players during the course of the ball game:

Charley Gussett, Darr, Ted Williams and Bob Adelmann, ends; Jim Wallace, Jackie Dennis and Dick Reiger, tackles; Don Stopp, Jim Reiger and Larry Besecker, guards; Bob Coolbaugh, center; Graydon Miller, Ronald Stopp, Harry Miller, Bob Kassay, John Graver, Roger Ray and Lawrence Buzzard, backs.

Stroudsburg returns to the junior varsity football was next Monday afternoon when the Mountaineers collide with East Stroudsburg, at Memorial Stadium.

Skiing Now Big Business

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 25 (AP)—Skiing has become a big business in many sections of the country.

In Michigan, for example, skiing is a five million dollar-a-season business. The business research department of Michigan State college says that each skier spent more than $24 per trip and an average of $36 for skis, plus an additional sum for clothes and accessories.

Nearly all skiers spend at least one night away from home. Most spend a full weekend. For accommodations they prefer motels, house-keeping cabins, private homes and lodges.

Almost as many women as men are ski enthusiasts. Most skiers of both sexes were in the 21-30 age group. Few housewives were found among the skiers, the women being mostly secretarial or office workers or college students.

Duncan capped the coveted title last year and best of the best Midget pilots in the East this season. Although Duncan's title hasn't been officially presented yet by the AAA Contest Board, he has the crown sewed up.

Duncan signed up for the gala sprint races on the heels of entries from such stars as "Iron Mike" Nazark, of Belmont, L. I., N. Y.; an Indianapolis headliner; Charlie Musselman, Collegeville, Pa., newest sensation in Offenhauser race competition; Johnny Thomson, Springfield, Mass., Indianapolis "500" ace and this year's Eastern AAA big car champion; Al Keller, Bloomfield, N. J., at the wheel of one of the fast Sam Traylor Offensauers from Allentown.

History will be made at the mile Langhorne Speedway again on Sunday for the six-event card will be the first sprint racing program here since 1948.

Action will start at 1 p.m. with trials. The first race will start at 2 p.m.

BLOCKING PASS—For the first time since 1945 Navy was able to trim Penn at Franklin Field, Saturday. It was an easy victory, with the score: Navy 52 and Penn 6. Here, in what looks like a wrestling match, Pennsylvania's Joe Callahan has an armlock on Navy's John Weaver who was attempting a pass.

Rumors Of PIAA Suspension Of Whitehall Apparently False

RUMORS MAKING THE ROUNDS of the Allentown area last night indicating that Whitehall High School, currently number one football team in the standings of the Lehigh Valley League, was to be suspended by the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association were apparently unfounded.

Mark N. Funk, executive director of the PIAA, contacted at his Harrisburg home by telephone last night, stated that he had heard absolutely nothing about such a move.

Dr. Frank P. Maguire, resident of East Stroudsburg and commissioner of PIAA officials, revealed that the report was news to him when contacted late last night. Maguire also added that it was virtually certain that there was no truth behind the report.

Rumors failed to present a reason for suspension of the grid machine that took the measure of Stroudsburg last Saturday afternoon, 32-7.

Bangor Grid Stars Unhurt, But Band Member Injured

BANGOR—Bangor High School's football team escaped injury in last Friday night's game with Copley here at Memorial Stadium, but the band was less fortunate.

The grid machine scored an easy 47-19 victory over Copley, without a player receiving even mild ill effects from the contest.

But Jimmy Finkbeiner, cymbal player in the band, suffered a possible fractured wrist.

It all happened right before the game when the Bangor players were trotting on the field. The band was located at one end of the gridiron playing suitable music for welcoming football teams.

Finkbeiner, an eighth grader, went to clash the cymbals during the course of the number but instead hit the goal post with one instrument and suffered the injury.

While Jimmy suffered pain throughout the game, the Slayers felt no pain as they steamrolled Copley.

The Slayers, who tangle with Nazareth next Saturday afternoon, will be at full strength for one of the biggest games on their schedule this season.

Action is listed for the Nazareth field and the kickoff is slated to take place at 2 p. m.

Fulks Quits Basketball

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Philadelphia Warriors announced today the retirement of Joe Fulks, a pioneer player in the National Basketball Association and holder of several NBA scoring records.

He also gave her the name of a fine young caddy telling her she couldn't go wrong with his advice.

Ronnie clubbed her all the way and Jackie gained a four-stroke lead after 54 holes.

Top Drivers Enter Langhorne Speedway Grind

LANGHORNE, Oct. 25—Another national headliner in speed competition has been added to the stellar field for the AAA championship big car auto races at the great Langhorne Speedway next Sunday afternoon.

He is veteran Len Duncan, of Philadelphia, the AAA Eastern Midget auto race champion two years in a row. Garcia Earns Split Verdict Over Costa

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—Rudy Garcia, 25-year-old Californian, made a successful eastern debut at Eastern Parkway Arena tonight by gaining a 10-round split decision over Carmelo Costa.

Garcia weighed 123, Costa 128½. Garcia, who came here from Los Angeles, snapped the unbeaten record of Costa, who went through 26 pro battles previous to tonight without defeat. The Mexican-American from the Coast proved a bullish little battler as he waded in without fear.

Costa, a Brooklyn boy, was staggered three times and floored for an eight count in the ninth round. It was a close battle and all three officials had it even in rounds with Garcia gaining the nod on the strength of the knockdown.

Judge Joe Agnello had it 5-5 in rounds and gave Garcia the edge on points, 8 to 5. Judge Joe Eppy had it 5-5 in rounds and called the fight even in points at 8-8. Referee Barney Felix had the rounds 5-5, and favored Garcia, 9 points to 6.

Cards Make Good Mistake

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 25 (AP)—Wally Moon confesses he came to the major leagues by mistake.

The 24-year-old outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals and the National League's "rookie of the year" says he was in the wrong place at the right time.

"I was playing winter ball for the Pastora club in the Venezuelan League. We won the championship in that league and were slated to represent Venezuela in the Caribbean series at San Juan, Puerto Rico," says Moon.

"I was under contract to the Cardinals' farm team, the Rochester Red Wings, General Manager Vaughn Devine had given me instructions to report to the advanced Cardinal training camp at Deland, Fla.

"I later received permission to play in the winter series and was told to go either to Deland or to St. Petersburg, if the Deland camp had closed.

"When the Caribbean series finished, I figured the Deland camp had closed so I went to St. Pete. When I arrived at St. Pete, however, I learned the Deland camp was still operating.

"Fortunately the Cards held me in St. Pete and I won a major league job."

Perhaps if he had gone directly to Deland he might never have had the chance to make the grade in 1954.

The Cardinals are mighty glad he came directly. Wallace Wade-Moon batted .303 and proved a dependable outfielder. His first time at bat in the majors he hit a home run. His last time at bat in September he also hit a homer.

Rivalry Still Hot At State

STATE COLLEGE, Oct. 25—Co-captain Don Balthaser and Frank Reich, who are sharing the center spot on the 1954 Penn State football team, were keen rivals as schoolboy centers at Reading, and Steadon High Schools, respectively.

Adams Lands Decision

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 25 (AP)—Pete Adams, 154, of Newark, N. J., won a unanimous decision over Larry Villeneuve, 159½, of Providence in a 10-rounder tonight. Adams, the heavier puncher, scored a knockdown in the first round and continued to stay ahead.

Durando Defeats Dykes

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 25 (AP)—An eight round knockdown earned Ernie Durando, 160½, a split decision tonight over Bobby Dykes, 158½, in a 10-round middleweight bout before a crowd of 2,754 at the Milwaukee Arena.

Collegiate Coaches Look Back Over Saturday's Grid Battles--Some Laugh, Others Issue Moans

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Old Professor was pulling cotton out of his ears and his Monday morning class of football coaches was worried. It looked like the old grid finally was coming apart at the seams, and the stuffing was showing.

Old Professor—Excuse me, gentlemen. I attended the Army-Columbia game, and every time Army scored the Kaydets would fire off a cannon. It began to sound like a machine gun, and nearly deafened me. In one word, the Army team is tremendous.

Ivy Williamson, Wisconsin—One word also sums up our game with Ohio State, Professor—Cassidy. That Howard Cassidy has been the big guy every year against us. He does those things all the time, and when they hurt most, Ohio State is a well-balanced, well-drilled team.

"Woody" Hayes, Ohio State—We beat a good club. I didn't feel we were better all around than the week before, but Cassidy was the game breaker. He's a great one.

Old Professor—Mr. Ward, when you buy something and are short on cash what do you do?

Dallas Ward, Colorado—You charge, Professor, and Nebraska really does it. They out-charged us, out-fought us and out-played us. It seems nothing went right for us and I think we made every mistake known to football. However, we learned a lot.

Bill Glassford, Nebraska—It was a team victory—every guy on our club fought like a tiger. We played better ball at more times in the game than we did in other games.

Old Professor—Mr. Elliot, was that you yelling "ouch?"

Ray Elliot, Illinois—Yes sir. Those eight fumbles really hurt. We'll have to be better to win in our own league. However, it was nice to see Illinois backs crossing the goal line for a change.

Ben Schwartzwalder, Syracuse—Illinois speed was just too much for us. Breakaway backs such as Caroline and Jefferson are what I need.

Old Professor—You want breaks, not brakes, for your men, in other words. Mr. Waldorf, what is better, but not as good?

"Pappy" Waldorf, California—Well, sir, this is a better California team than we had last year, but it looks like our record won't be as good.

Jess Hill, USC—When I'm glad that one is over. And how about that Paul Larson? If anybody had any doubts about him before, this game certainly should have sold 'em. But we won, so I guess we weren't too bad.

Old Professor—Mr. Vaughn, did you ever pass through Arkansas? and it would be tough. They've got a good pass defense with superior speed in the secondary. And they have a good pursuing attack. They are well trained and know what they're doing. Their second unit moved the ball as well as the first.

Bowden Wyatt, Arkansas—It was another tremendous team effort. When we stopped their third drive and they didn't score, I thought we had stopped 'em. Mississippi has a fine team, no doubt about that.

Old Professor—Our time is up. Here are some aspirin tablets. Take one after each fumble next Saturday. Good for that letdown feeling. Good day, gentlemen.

New Attendance Mark

STATE COLLEGE, Oct. 25—A new all-time high was set for Penn State's Beaver Field when 32,221 paid admissions were recorded for the West Virginia game.

Wood Renews Attack On Foe's Plan To Boost Industry Tax

that almost ruined Pennsylvania in the days of the Little New Deal and left the country hanging on the ropes in the days of the big New Deal and the Truman Fair Deal," he added.

Wood, before embarking on the final full week of campaigning, forecast that the GOP would carry the state by 100,000 votes.

Elated over President Eisenhower's visit into Pennsylvania on Saturday, he said:

"The president's visit was the clincher. We'll carry the state by 100,000."

At Tarentum, Wood came out for increased workmen's and unemployment compensation benefits "in line with the cost of living."

He said:

"This is a pledge of the Republican party and I am for it 100 per cent. I ought to be because I saw to it that this pledge was included in our party platform."

He said that he was "astounded" to learn he had been accused of planning to reduce unemployment compensation benefits.

"Nothing could decrease either the amount or the period of unemployment compensation," he asserted. "I favor increases in workmen's and unemployment compensation and occupational disease benefits in line with the cost of living."

The lieutenant governor added that if elected there would be no "tampering" with the public school employees retirement system. He promised to "preserve every right that working men and women now have and to extend them in every feasible way."
